

Instructor – 80-hour Wilderness First Responder / Advanced First Aid

Job Overview

Rocky Mountain Adventure Medicine is looking for experienced instructors to join our highly qualified team. The position is part time, with peak seasons running April – June and September – November. Training will begin in February 2026, in readiness for spring programs. Primary teaching locations are Calgary and Canmore; however, courses can take place throughout Alberta. If you are an experienced instructor with outdoor experience, we would like to hear from you.

Instructor Role description:

- Deliver engaging, informative and highly practical 80-hour Wilderness First Responder and Advanced First Aid programs and re-certification courses to clients.
- Provide hands-on learning that builds skills, enhances confidence and empowers course participants.
- Teach content that aligns with RMAM programs and medical direction.
- Engage positively and communicate effectively with students.
- Manage and organize equipment and paperwork before, during and after each course.
- Represent RMAM in a professional manner.

Requirements:

- Current instructor / teaching qualification.
- Current 80-hour certification (WFR or AFA) or higher, Pre-hospital qualification or medical training.
- Wilderness / backcountry experience.
- Excellent communication skills.
- Strong interpersonal skills.
- Flexible availability.
- Ability to work well as part of a team.
- While preference will be given to candidates with previous teaching experience, individuals with a strong wilderness background and /or relevant medical experience will be considered.
- Ability to travel throughout Alberta is an asset (travel expenses provided).
